1. 2019 Sancerre, Hippolyte Reverdy (new vintage)

$5.5 taste, $34 btl. >> $28.90 on 6 mix

100% Sauvignon Blanc. Beautiful Sancerre, and all good things that Sauvignon Blanc can be. Lemon curd and grapefruit citrus with mineral notes. Bright, but with a touch of slick texture. A classic.

2. 2018 Peay Vineyards Chardonnay, Sonoma Coast

$7 taste, $45 btl. >> $38.25 on 6 mix

100% Chardonnay. "The 2018 Chardonnay (Sonoma Coast) is a gorgeous appellation-level wine. Lemon confit, mint, apricot and a kiss of new French oak add character to a silky, exceptionally polished wine that hits all the right notes. About three quarters of this fruit is from the estate. The 2018 is such a classy and well-balanced wine. I loved it. (92/100)" Antonio Galloni, Vinous

3. 2017 Bourgogne Rouge, Nicolas Rossignol

$7 taste, $45 btl. >> $38.25 on 6 mix

100% Pinot Noir. Sourced from Volnay and Pommard. This is a clean, fresh, juicy red with light, pretty red fruits and herbal accents with a touch of spice. Lovely, elegant and high-toned.

4. 2018 Gigondas 'Classique,' Dom. du Grand Bourjassot

$5 taste, $28 btl. >> $23.80 on 6 mix

70% Grenache, 22% Syrah, and 8% Mourvèdre "Tangs of crushed granite and salt juxtapose sumptuous black fig and dried strawberry in this wine. It's full bodied and forward but upright, rigid tannins and fresh minerality lend structure and balance. Ready to drink now it could improve through 2030. (92/100)" Anna Lee C. Iijima, Wine Enthusiast

5. 2016 Chianti Rufina Reserva 'Bucerchiale,' Selvapiana $38

$6 taste, $38 btl. >> $32.30 on 6 mix

100% Sangiovese. "The 2016 Chianti Rufina Vigneto Bucerchiale is a dark, brooding wine. Swaths of tannin make a first impression. Gradually, black cherry, plum, lavender, cloves, leather and menthol start to emerge. This potent, massively tannic Chianti Rufina is going to need a number of years to come around. There is plenty of depth, but the elements are totally put together. The 2016 finishes with tremendous substance and gravitas. I expect the 2016 will always remain a brute. (94/100)" Antonio Galloni, Vinous
